

4 February 1980

MEMORANDUM FOR: See Distribution

25X1 FROM:

25X1

Special Assistant to the DCI

SUBJECT:

Schedule--Elsah, Illinois, and Minneapolis, Minnesota

5-7 February 1980

Schedule:

Tuesday, 5 February

```
0830
       ENR to Charlottesville, Virginia (w/o DCI) 0900
       ARR Charlottesville - ENR 205 Montvue Drive 1000
       Memorial Service (Hill & Wood Funeral Home)
1300
       ENR Elsah, Illinois [3h -1]
1500
       ARR Alton Airport
       ARR Principia
1530
1745
       Dinner w/the Andrews
1930
       Religious Services
2030
       Prepare for address (President's office)
       Address (Cox Auditorium)
2100
```

RON President's Quarters

Wednesday, 6 February

RON

```
0800
                  Baggage pickup
           0815
                  ENR Airport -- PDB arrives
           0900
                  ENR Minneapolis
      1115 2045
                  ARR Twin Cities Airport
                                                           -- ENR Federal Building
       //3º 1100
25X1
      1140 7730
                  ENR Minneapolis Club
           1200
                  Discussion/luncheon (Minneapolis Club)
           1400
                  ENR Minneapolis Star Tribune
           1415
                  Editorial Board
           1530
                  ENR Honeywell
           1545
                  ARR Honeywell
           1715
                  ENR Spencer residence -- 1 hour drive (DCI only)--(DCI staff ENR Radisson Hotel)
          1815
                  ARR Spencer residence
```

CONFIDENTIAL

25X1

25X1

Thursday, 7 February ENR Twin Cities Airport (DCI and Mrs. Turner) 0800 Baggage pickup (DCI staff) ENR Twin Cities Airport (DCI staff) 0800 0815 PDB arrives planeside 0830 ENR Washington [2h 50m +1) 0900 1250 ARR Washington, D.C. [Light lunch on board] Points of Contact: Illinois Alton Airport, Walston Aviation (618) 259-3230 25X1 (618) 463-0800 Pilot at Ramada Inn Principia College President's Office (618) 374-2131 x-265 President's Quarters (618) 374-2131 x-555 25X1 Alumni Guest House Cox Auditorium (618) 374-2131 x-291 Minneapolis Twin Cities Airport, (612) 726-5214 at Holiday Airport #1 (612) 854-4000 Pilot Minneapolis Club (612) 332-2292 (612) 375-7000 Minneapolis Star Tribune Honeywell (Lois Pearson) (612) 870-2213 or (612) 378-4141 Spencer Residence Radisson Hotel (DCI Staff) (612) 333-2181 Ambassador Motel (DCI Security) (612) 545-0441 25X1 Distribution: DDCI EA/DCI DCI Security DDA 000 Security Duty Office DD0 cc: 25X1 D/Communications D/Security

25X1

25X1

25X1

2

CONFIDENTIAL

LUNCHEON PARTICIPANTS

Donald W. McCarthy Chairman and President Northern States Power Company

Carl B. Drake, Jr. Chairman St. Paul Companies, Inc.

Coleman Bloomfield Chairman & President Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Jack J. Crocker Chairman Super Valu Stores, Inc.

Bruce B. Dayton Chairman, Finance Committee Dayton Hudson Corporation

N. Bud Grossman Chairman Gelco Corporation

Raymond H. Herzog Chairman 3M Company

David A. Koch President Graco Inc.

William G. Phillips Chairman International Multifoods Corp.

William H. Spoor Chairman Pillsbury Company

John Cowles, Jr. Chairman Minneapolis Star & Tribune Co. Donald R. Grangaard Chairman First Bank System, Inc.

Dale R. Olseth President Medtronic, Inc.

Harry C. Piper, Jr.
President
Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood, Inc.

Gerald A. Rauenhorst President Rauenhorst Corporation

A. Byron Reed President Munsingwear, Inc.

William G. Stocks President Peavey Company

C. Angus Wurtele
Chairman
The Valspar Coy

E. C. Lund Vice President, Administration Honeywell Inc.

M. D. McVay President Cargill, Inc.

Chester C. Lind President Northwest Bancorporation

J. W. Morrison . Chairman Northwestern National Bank of Mpls

CONFIDENTIAL

CONFIDENTIAL

E. Peter Gillette, Jr. President Northwestern National Bank of Mpls.

DeWalt H. Ankeny, Jr. President First National Bank of Mpls.

Dr. C. Peter Magrath President University of Minnesota

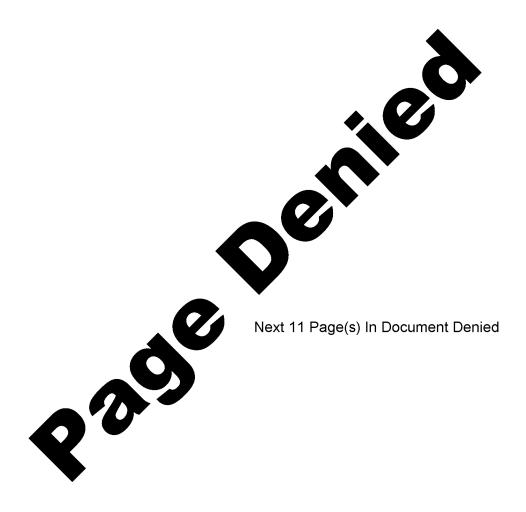

Dr. Roger Stahle Dean, Institute of Technology University of Minnesota

David M. Lilly Dean, College of Business Administration University of Minnesota

Waverly Smith
President
St. Paul Companies, Inc.

Lewis W. Lehr President 3M Company

CONFIDENTIAL

Broad claim to secrecy

The government has a legitimate interest in protecting the identities of its undercover agents. But that interest, like any other governmental claim to secrecy, must be narrowly circumscribed to prevent abuse. A bill proposed in the U.S. House of Representatives would go in the opposite direction by illogically — and dangerously — widening the scope of secrecy. The bill, the Intelligence identities Protection Act, should be defeated.

The bill's illogical feature is its provision for punishing private citizens who disclose information deduced from non-classified sources. The provision's target is a Washington newsletter that publishes the names of CIA agents, whom it identifies by combing through Poreign Service personnel lists and other public documents. How can anyone "disclose" information that is already available to anyone with access to public documents and the ability to put two and two together? Should such a person be subject to criminal prosecution? We think not.

What makes the bill dangerous is that it could silence not only potential whisile-blowers within the CIA, but also journalists, authors and scholars who wish to write about it. Free and open discussion of an important public agency should not be discouraged by the threat of unreasonably broad criminal penalties.

THE MINNEAPOLIS

Copyright 1977 Minneapolis Star and Tribune Company

Carrier: Motor route: Single copy 20¢ Delivered

Thursday, April 28, 1977

EDITOR'S NOTE: What is the CIA doing in Minneapolis? Where is its office? Who are the agents who work in the Twin Cities for he nation's most secret organizatriguing. An article on Wallace ap-Ne Citizens League board and the ssues in his case are especially inigned reporters Patrick Marx and The Minneapolis Star Bob Wallace, is running for Furst to find out.

By PATRICK MARX and RANDY FURST Minneapolis Star Staff Writers

There's no name on the door.

end with a yellow curtain coveroom with a glass window at one Inside, there's a small reception

loak-and-dagger operations woman behind the glass window pulls aside the curtain just enough to see who's there. On her desk is When you enter the room, large booklet with "SECRET"

"What do you want?" she asks

PAUL HENDRICKSON CIA regional director

Business of CIA here is business

Shy agents avoid public notice, but one is seeking civic office

You tell her. She looks suspi-

YOU'RE IN Federal Building Room 507 at Fort Snelling and it's supposed to be secret. Room 507 pi River Basin Commission. the offices of the Upper Mississip-CIA. It is just down the hall from activities. He says there are here is not involved in any covert Paul Hendrickson, CIA regional claims the local offices

The agency maintains that only function is to interview p Cities individuals. o domestic surveillance of Twin have information about for-operations and has gone to considerable length to hide its presence in the Twin Cities. Efforts traordinarily secretive about its by The Star to obtain the rudimentary information s the CIA here proved difficult.

However, the CIA remains ex

The only bit of public informa-tion given out by the CIA is its telephone number, which is list-ed—without an address— in the phone directories.

The CIA will not say how many nor how large its office is. It reused a request by The has on the payroll here only after a number of phone calls, tailing a CIA agent and a calls, tailing a Fig. 1997 the Fort THE STAR found the CIA office

Snelling federal office building.
It is the first time the present office has been publicly disclosed.

The CIA has its subscription to the Minneapolis Tribune sent to the Fort Snelling office building, addressed to the "P.R. Hendrickson Co." Paul R. Hendrickson is the regional director. There is no P.R. Hendrickson Co.

confronted him as he was comin briefly with the reporters to work one morning.

personnel who work in the Fo Snelling office building and are charge of government suppli not even known by some Genera The identity of the CIA office equipment. Administration > ployees refer to the office as "the EOB"—the Executive Office Building of the president. said the office

cation has not been made fice and "nut visits. to demonstrations outside the of by the CIA because it might

"The last thing we want to ceive in person are those w sages implanted in their teeth," bring messages from outer space or those who have secret mes-

LOCAL CIA officers refuse to discuss in any detail what they do formation officer at CIA quarters in Langley, Va., about local activity to a public sn't very helpful either. They refer all questions harmed, the CIA maintains. igents and hrouded in secrecy for fear Much of what local offices do is the offices might

Turn to Page 2A

Hendrickson

Continued from page 1A

In addition to Hendrickson, there are at least three other local CIA agents—Robert Wallace, some things about the CIA during a two-week investigation. John Webster and Thomas Sullialist. He is a thin man with an alist. He is a thin man with or row-layel sult when Star reporters met him in the hall. He lives in Edina.

Webster, a black, was in his office smoking a cigar when The Star visited the CIA offices a section of the smoking a cigar when The Star visited the CIA offices a section of the smoking a cigar when The Star visited the CIA offices a section of the smill star in the lives.

He said he was formerly with military intelligence and had been with the agency since August.

The CIA says he is not now in the citary intelligence. However, can webster still is an Army intelligence. Kathy Kral of the Operations of the Citary U.S. Army Intelligence, we leave to organization. Wallace's a prestigous local receiped and the company of the Citary of the Spectandidacy has produced some ancient of the Citary of the Spectandidacy has produced some ancients of the Citary of the Spectandidacy has produced some ancients. For what thinks the CIA may be continuating the league, Wallace's and cinica any ulterior motives.

Sullivan provided little informavilion about himself in a curt telephone interview. He refused to we pass how old he is, what he does it for the CIA, how long he has reworked for the agency or how eventually has been stationed in the etc.
Twin Cities. He peppered his re"sponses with remarks such as, n "None of your business."

porter had seen on the CIA recepvan snapped back. "To read the ball scores," Sulli-); } functions were transferred out of from its sources, the state. Clow now is head of se- Bdward Asplin curity for Meditonic Inc., a firm president of Bemis Co. Inc., said Paul from 1971 until 1975, when Transfer THE CIA gets mixed reviews for the CIA in an office in St. KEN CLOW was chief recruiter Edward Asplin, executive vicecants for CIA jobs, he said. Hendrickson said the CIA has terview and to recommend applithe Twin Cities was solely to inwhile he was an analyst for the CIA in Washington, His work in that makes heart pacemakers. He said the involvement occurred occasion but will not give details. Clow admits to intrigue 9 involvement in at least an office here because there are a number of companies in the Twin Cities involved in international nesota travel abroad. trade and because a number of persons at the University of Min-sion." According to the CIA, the local is one of 36 offices of the "domestic collection director, Hendrickson, has been with the CIA regional

the CIA

director, explained the rationale behind the domestic collection igencies in an interview with The WILLIAM COLBY, Why go aboad and former CIA spy formation." information from a friendly American," Colby said. "Despite all the uproar, we still have patrisomebody when you can pretty said. routine He said work," get the mation they have obtained in forroutinely cialized knowledge of a technical field or who have travel experacademic people who have a specontacts focus lences that interest the CIA. corporations and round some The Star surveyed a number of metropolitan countries. brief the CIA on inforand 음 Spokesmen area's business the CIA contacts Control Data ecutives was denied. The spokesman said he thought contact was said he knows of one executive who has frequent contacts with the CIA, but he declined to elaborate. A request to interview Honsaid he knows of Honeywell Inc. spokesman The spokes-aware of any CIA-corporate con-others said they are some companies declined to com-nections. ment;

The Star asked Sullivan why Corp and "debriefs" personnel resthe CIA office subscribed to the turning from abroad "from time butten news Tribune, which a re- to time," said Jim Bowe, a Con-Union or to other Communist nagarded, long-standing practice." viewed had traveled to the Soviet Control Data employees inter-Bowe said, "It is a routinely > the CIA provides him with a sub-stantial amount of information ness dealings. sions about his international busithat is valuable in making gives to the CIA. the CIA gives him more informa-He said, in fact, that he thinks ul to his business than he rounding the CIA has been all wrong," he said. "The CIA is a super bunch of people," He said the CIA has "a very positive attitude toward business,"

A Cargill Inc. official, who "The negative inference sur-

(mathematical) model of the inter-national trade situation." asked not to be named, said the CIA has a "very sophisticated

Cargill has exported grain to several Communist countries, including the Soviet Union.

Dr. Dennis Watson, head of the the 1950s and 1960s. Was in University of Minnesota's microbidepartment, frequent contact with him traveled extensively in said the CIA me and they weren't obnoxious, but the whole concept of the CIA bothered me." "THEY USED to be around a lot and it used to annoy me," Watson said. "They didn't really bother deci-

Communist country, they'd con-tact me. They'd call you on the teacher first met agent Wallace at a cocktail party, which led to the meeting with Sullivan.

"In every way he was fortheright, showing me his identifications with CIA agent Sullivan in a meeting at his office last fall. The the University of Minnesota who strategic arms limitation negotiaasked discussed his work tion and making no attempt to disguise who he was. He was di-rect and businesslike," the teacher versation that there may be one or more agents working under cover for Twin Cities corporations. The agent wouldn't elaborate, but a former agent said such CIA undercover agents could to be identified indicated in a con-One CIA agent who asked not agents could

"They would bend over back-vards to be diplomatic, but I on-the-spot the minute you got phone first and they'd be Johnny-"Always, if I were going to a communist country, they'd con-

A political science teacher at that he remain anonymous ទ្ធ said

nied it, or aware of Every corporation contacted with the CI teacher said he did or said they want his name used for fear nothing that he wouldn't tell But he insisted he told the reputation might be damaged for having cooperated with the CIA, sexuals

because the

THE CIA will not hire

bomo-

fice for years. The agency was created by the National Security Act of 1947. By 1951, it had set up headquarters at the Midland Bank names" of V. R. Sando and Asso-Building in Minneapolis. In 1968, THE CIA has been hiding its of-"lwyrs" (lawyers), according the Polk city directory. Sando not a lawyer. A CIA spokesn Sando "did not misrepresent him-self." must have been a mistake because the reference to spokesman "lwyrs"

Vernon Sando was the CIA re-gional director. He left the Twin ton.

work for a corporation and also thought it was so silly, even Most of the state's major corper though they took themselves very rations were asked by The Star i seriously," Watson said. there are agents on their payroll. any such arrangment were. 혅 clates and V.R. and Associates.

The offices were ~~~ offices were occupied by Sando is marijuana users was dropped in the early 1970s because most of the people the CIA was interested Clow said. A prohibition against gathering skills of CIA agents and perience. He said the informationemployees have news media in had at least experimented eporters are largely the same. sexuals because the agency be-lieves they could be blackmalled, Clow said that a number of CIA

ě

his own organization instead said a prominent person from the Twin Cities news media applied for a CIA job recently, but the man took a job promotion within be transferred back to Washing-Clow said he left the CIA 1975 because he did not want Snelling. Cities in 1971, two years before somewhere in the midwest, the CIA moved I its offices to Fort is now stationed this region, which includes ! nesota, South Dakota, North the CIA won't say where. recruited as CIA employees About 125 persons a year are nesota, South Dunder, Train of kota, Wisconsin and a portion of Michigan, according to Clew, the former CIA recruiter.

'IA agent's candidacy for litizens Léague questioned

A welfare rights group is quescommittee didn't know Wallace ing the propriety of a local worked for the CIA. agent running for a seat on the board of the Citizens League, a prestigious volunteer organization that makes recommendations on government policy. Robert Wallace, the agent, doesn't see anything wrong with it. Wallace is 32 and has Wallace worked for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency for six years. He is the center of a controversy these days because of his league membership. Wallace says he's daing his league activities on his 1 time, not because he works for the CIA.

HIS CIA affiliation has riled a welfare rights activist group that is demanding that he withdraw from the league's board election. The election is by mail and ends

At a press conference scheduled today, the welfare group, PACER (Public Assistance Coalition for Equal Rights, is expected to demand that an investigation by state and federal authorities be conducted to determine what other employees of investigative agencies also belong to such groups as the league.

James Gambone, a PACER leader, believes that Wallace is involved in the league for ulterior motives. He says he believes the CIA is studying welfare apparatus :: as a way to maintain control over: poor people in the United States and other countries.

R. Gambone learned of Wallace's CIA affiliation just before, Gambone was to appear before the league's income maintenance committee, which is studying recommendations for changing the wel-fare system. Wallace is head of the committee. PACER: claims that other witnesses before the

WALLACE SAYS he joined the Citizens League in 1974 because he is a concerned citizen who wants to fulfill his civic obligations. He came to Minneapolis in 1973. He says he told members of the league that he worked for the CIA and says his affiliation with the agency is inconsequential. The Star interviewed some league members who served on league committees with Wallace. Some knew he worked for the CIA and some said they didn't.

Paul Hendrickson, regional director of the CIA in Minneapolis and Wallace's boss, defends Wallace's league activity. Hendrickson said that he and Wallace discussed what goes on at the league meetings but that Wallace does not file a report on what takes place there. place there.

The CIA claims that Wallace and other local CIA employees are not involved in domestic activity but only in the collection of foreign intelligence.